

Biographical Statement

Marshall Jung, D.S.W., Professor Emeritus, received his Master's from the University of Southern California and his doctorate from the University of Pennsylvania. He has over forty (40) years of social work experience in the capacity of community organizer, administrator, educator, writer, supervisor, trainer, clinician, facilitator of retreats, and spiritual director. He served on the first National Asian American Research Board and on the First National Asian American Practice Committee for the National Institute of Mental Health. He was also one of the co-founders of the Asian American Council in Philadelphia (the first of such organization in Philadelphia)

Dr. Jung received his family therapy training from Dr. Salvador Minuchin, Dr. Ivan Nagy, and Mr. Jay Haley. He worked as an outpatient mental health director for three (3) years for the Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital, Department of Mental Health in Philadelphia. Following this experience, he then served as Executive Director of the Family Service Association of Riverside for nearly eight (8) years.

During his career, Dr. Jung served as an adjunct professor for the Loma Linda Department of Marriage and Family Therapy and the University of Southern California Department of Social Work before becoming a full time professor with the California State University, San Bernardino, Department of Social Work. He retired from this position as a full professor.

Dr. Jung is a nationally recognized expert in marital/couple and family therapy. He has provided workshops at numerous national and state conferences as well as for developmental centers, family and social service agencies, mental health, health, and residential treatment facilities, and state and veteran's hospitals throughout the Southwestern United States and Canada. In addition, He has published in major professional journals and written two books on clinical practice the first being Constructual Marital Therapy: Theory and Practice and the second Chinese American Family Therapy. His current interest is the integration of spirituality and ego based psychology. His fifth book is being written on "Marriage: A Journey into Love, Mystery, and Integrity." Dr. Jung lives with his wife Rosie in Pasadena California.